

Functional Programming with Erlang

Terms and Conditions

If you have any questions about this document, please use the course Feedback Form to contact us.

Code of Conduct

- Do not create, display, produce or circulate any material that is liable to cause offence, or is obscene, abusive or defamatory.
- Do not engage in any unlawful activity, including any breach of copyright.
- Use your real name for your External Moodle account, and do not set up multiple accounts.
- Keep your password secure. Do not tell anyone else your password or let them use your account - all use of your account is your responsibility.
- Familiarise yourself with the Regulations for the Use of IT Facilities at the University of Kent \(pdf\) - you are bound by these regulations.
- Post contributions in English to enable all to understand.
- Never send or forward junk e-mail or chain e-mails.

Acceptable use

You agree:

- To use this resource only for lawful purposes and in no way that is unlawful or fraudulent
- Not to distribute content without our consent
- Not to alter or modify any of the content
- Not (and not to attempt to) circumvent, disable or interfere with any security related features
- Not to send or submit any data or content that contains viruses, Trojan horses, worms, spyware, adware or any other harmful programs or similar
- Not to use the resource for any commercial uses
- Not to ask for or collect any personal data of any other user of the resource

- Not to transmit or distribute chain letters, surveys or studies, junk mail, spamming, or bulk communications of any kind
- Not to use the resource in any manner intended to damage, disable or impair any University of Kent server or connected network(s)
- Not to access or attempt to access any account other than your own, or misrepresent your identity

Your content and data

You are able to upload content, for example via our Discussion Forums. We do not claim ownership of such content.

Where you provide content, you are responsible for and must ensure that you have all necessary rights, licenses or clearances. In particular, you agree to comply with all applicable laws regarding online conduct, including any regarding transmission of technical data exported from the country in which you reside.

We ask that you're respectful in your contributions to discussions. We reserve the right to remove anything we deem:

- Abusive or personal attacks
- Material that is unlawful, obscene, defamatory, threatening, harassing, abusive, slanderous, hateful or embarrassing to any other entity
- Third party advertising
- Chain letters or 'spam'

We also reserve the right to terminate involvement by users who post such content.

We will study activity and content as part of our research to understand MOOCs better and improve our courses. We will anonymise data used for this purpose.

Content that infringes the intellectual property rights of any third party will be removed as soon as possible.